

Church Hill Homes Receives 5 Parade of Homes Awards

Charlottesville, Virginia. Church Hill Homes is pleased to announce its triumph at this year's Blue Ridge Home Builder's Association Parade of Homes.

The Charlottesville-based homebuilder took home five awards including Best Exterior Design, Best Interior Design, Best Master Suite and Best Overall in the Category of "Homes Priced between $501,000 - $550,000" for their Chatham model home at Wickham Pond. The Chatham offers over 2,900 square feet of three level living, 4 bedrooms, 2.5 baths and a detached garage. In addition to architecturally distinctive homes, this beautifully sited community includes open park spaces, tree-lined streets, sidewalks, white picket fences, a pond and gorgeous views of the Blue Ridge Mountains. It is also easily accessible, located directly off of Route 240, only 15 minutes from Charlottesville in Crozet, Virginia. These Earthcraft-certified homes are available from the mid-$400s.

In the "Homes Priced between $374,000-$400,000 Category", Church Hill added the Best Kitchen award for their Sycamore model at Fox Glenn in Fluvanna County. The Sycamore offers over 1,929 square feet with three bedrooms, two and a half baths, and a side-load garage. Fox Glenn offers 24 single family homes with a rural location and city convenience. Located off Rt. 250 just into Fluvanna County, homes are available now from the mid $300's.

Church Hill Homes are unique; built with personality and charm, made with only quality materials and built by the best local craftsmen. Second generation builders, Josh Goldschmidt and Jamie Spence, are proud to have served the community with a legacy of fine home building for over two decades. Believing that building homes is about more than timber and nails, Church Hill Homes distinguishes itself by taking home building to a new level.
